First Vocational Training Class Will Graduate Tonight

Members of the class—1. Louise C. opp. 2. Juliet Kau. 3. Ella Kau. 4. Alice Lee. 5. Hattie Silva. 6. Mary Holoholokalani. 7. Helen Poepeo. 8. Clifton M. Yamamoto, class presid. ent. 9. William Werner. 10. Michael Dussan. 11. George Kekauoha.

The first class to graduate in vocational training will receive diplomas at the Normal School graduation exercises this evening.

Eleven members of the graduating class have given special attention to vocational work besides carrying the regular studies of the training school course.

There are seven young women and four young men. The girls have gone out to seven grammar grade and primary schools in the city, and from 10:30 to the noon hour have in their respective schools prepared as high as 250 lunches which have been sold to the children at five cents each. These vocational workers have had the assistance of six or eight children in the school who in turn have been learning under the direction of the vocational leaders. The lunches have been sold in competition with the street vendors. The school lunch gives more for the money, is clean and wholesome, and furthermore the enterprise is a paying proposition. It costs the public treasury nothing. These lunches have always been served on time.

The boys of the class have turned their hands and heads to construction and repair work about the various school buildings of the city and county. They have built the kitchens necessitated at different schools to carry out the lunch idea. They have put in the sinks, made the tables. Generally speaking, there has been a work of construction and repair. They have been assisted by boys of the schools where the construction and repairing has been done.

These students in both branches, domestic science and construction, or to put it in other terms, housekeeping and carpentry—had to pass in all the regular Normal school studying and classroom assignments of the course, the vocational work calling for overtime hours.

Every member of this class has received an appointment to teach next year in the larger schools of the city. In the meantime there are other students of the Normal coming forward next year to gain the knowledge and do the work of the vocational department.

At the class night exercises of the Normal School held last evening the spokesman for the class stated that while in the Normal one thing had been dimmed into them from the start: "They must play the game and play it hard."

Matsuo, charged with having chafed lottery tickets in his possession, was allowed to withdraw his appeal from the district court in Judge Ashford's division of circuit court this morning upon payment of the costs of the latter court.

GUNS OF ALLIES' SHIPS NEVER TRAINED ON SMYRNA IN FIGHT

People Took to Balconies and Watched Destruction of Forts, Says Letter

Once—it was during the Turkish-Italian war—an American sloop meandered into Smyrna intent on making the Dardanelles through the Black Sea. The ship hit one of the hundreds of floating Turkish mines and blew up.

So it will be with the fighting ships of the Allies unless the opponents of the Teutonic alliance withdraw from the Dardanelles campaign, according to Mlle. Eleonore Tasartez, lately of Smyrna and more recently of France. Mlle. Tasartez is now the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Emerson at Hackfeld and Spencer streets, Honolulu.

"I do not believe the Allies will ever capture the Dardanelles," Mlle. Tasartez says. "If they do it will be through a terrible loss of lives and ships. I witnessed the destruction of an American ship at Smyrna during the Turkish-Italian war. It was destroyed by a floating mine. I do not think that even the Turks themselves know just where these mines are located, and I believe the Dardanelles are mined the same way. Even suppose the forts on the Dardanelles are destroyed and silenced by the Allies, then they must risk the mines."

This week's mail brought Mlle. Tasartez an uncensored letter which was mailed on board an Italian steamer three or four days after the capture of Smyrna by the British and French troops. A graphic description of the fall of the historic forts is given in the letter.

"The bombardment of the forts lasted five days," the letter says in French. "It was strange, but in the city of Smyrna everything was quiet. Not a gun was turned on the town by the British or French ships, and everybody in Smyrna took to the balconies and watched the bombardment of the forts with field glasses. Every once in a while a column of water or a column of smoke, depending on where the shells struck, would rise in the air."

"The day before the fall of the forts, the fourth day of the bombardment, was the worst for us in Smyrna. The governor announced that the town would never give in, and he caused every subject of the allied nations to be arrested, but on the fifth day he changed his mind and released his prisoners. Then the British troops occupied the city."

DO AWAY WITH HULA GIRL LABEL WHICH CONGRESSMEN DISLIKED

The "Hula Hula" label on the canned pineapple put out by the Haku Fruit & Packing Company, Ltd., to which several members of the congressional party voiced objections when they visited the islands last month, will be given up, and some label more representative of present day conditions will be substituted, according to the following letter received by A. P. Taylor, acting secretary of the Hawaii Promotion Committee, who smiled a bit grimly as he read the "slap" at the Mid-Pacific Carnival poster which the letter contains:

"Haku, Maui, T. H., June 4, 1915.
"Hawaii Promotion Committee,
"Young Building, Honolulu, T. H.
"Gentlemen:
"We have for acknowledgment your letter of May 24 with reference to our 'Hula Hula' label.
"Owing to the absence of the writer your letter has not been replied to before this.
"We note the criticism you offer regarding this label and, no doubt, as you contend, the pictures are not typical of present up-to-dateness of the islands."

"We beg to state, however, that we are not attempting to picture present conditions, the idea being rather, to present older time conditions. 'Also, it is not our attempt, particularly, to advertise the Hawaiian Islands, but to sell pineapple, and we drew up this particular label to meet the views of certain of our Eastern representatives.
"Frankly, we are not at all fond of this label ourselves, and as a matter of fact had decided some time ago to remodel it for next season. We were never satisfied with the left hand panel. As contrasted with this picture, however, we consider the representation as being far more truthful and not so misrepresentative as the last poster of the Mid-Pacific Carnival, which poster was gotten out in connection, no doubt, with the largest scheme for strictly advertising the Hawaiian Islands.
"We, however, will take the matter of this label under advisement, and thanking you for drawing our attention to it, we beg to remain,
"Very truly yours,
"HAKU FRUIT & PACKING COMPANY, LTD.,
"W. M. A. BALDWIN, Manager."

STUBBS FINDS NO MARKET FOR TRAVEL SERIES

"My articles on Hawaii are all written, nine of them, but I am sorry to say there seems no chance of obtaining a wide circulation for them in Australia until the war is over," writes Rev. Frederick Stubbs from Sydney to A. P. Taylor, acting secretary of the Promotion Committee.

Mr. Stubbs was in Honolulu last fall, and was greatly assisted by the Promotion Committee in his tour of the territory, the understanding being that he would write a series of articles about the Hawaiian Islands which would be designed to boost tourist travel from Australasia.

Being unable at this time to place his articles, Mr. Stubbs is giving a lecture, illustrated by 50 lantern slide views of the islands. "A Paradise of the Pacific" is the title of his talk. He speaks in his letter of his gratitude for the courtesies he received here, and promises to do all in his power to boost Hawaii.
